Another Illinois Prisoner Defying his Keepers

The town was thrown into consternation on Tuesday, by the report that James D. Smith, who was in jail, charged with burglary, was literally killing himself by self-torture. Immediately, a crowd collected at the jail, and some had evidence that the report was well founded. They found D. Smith without his coat, trousers and legs bare, engaged in hacking his limbs with a razor, and, as a matter of course, the blood was flowing freely from the wounds.

He expressed his determination to end his life in this slow and torturing manner, and declared that he would kill any person who attempted to prevent him from carrying out his determination. Besides his razor, he had a pen-knife in his pocket, and he threatened to use it to cut his throat.

During the whole day, he conversed with his acquaintances, whom he could see from the jail window, and the openings in the floor. He told his friends that he had no more to live for, and that he would prefer to die than to remain in jail. He was drinking beer, and eating food, and he was in a state of mind that he would not be deterred by any threats or promises.

He told his friends that he was tired of his life, and that he was tired of his imprisonment. He told them that he was tired of his friends, and that he was tired of his enemies. He told them that he was tired of his life, and that he was tired of his imprisonment.

Desperate Fight with a Man Who Would Not Pay His Taxes

The York county papers give the particulars of a desperate encounter with a man named John Strong, living in Holliday, who is a property holder, but has not paid his taxes for seven or eight years. When a tax collector made his appearance, Strong would drive him from his premises, and no officer had succeeded in arresting him. On Wednesday last, a week or two ago, a meeting was held at Strong's place to arrest him. Meeting him near his house, he told him his name and the time that he had to pay his taxes. He told him that he would not pay his taxes, and that he would not let any officer come near his house. THE ADAMS SENTINEL

GETTYSBURG:

MONDAY, APRIL 5, 1868.

Answer to last week's Query—40, 320 dinners, or more than 110 years

Mr. JACOB H. LITTELL has been appointed Postmaster at the Two Taverns, this county, in the place of Jacob Little, deceased.

The Kansas Struggle

On Thursday last, the exciting question of the admission of Kansas under the Leecompton Constitution came up in the House of Representatives of the United States, and Mr. Montgomery, of Pennsylvania, offered what was termed the Crittenden substitute, which was amended by the Leecompton Democrats. The substitute is thus amended, proposed to admit Kansas into the Union, and refer the Leecompton Constitution to the vote of the people. In the event of its rejection, a Convention is to be called to form a new Constitution, and to be allowed one Representative in the House of Representatives until the next Federal census. This amendment, the bill passed 120 to 112. This is a great triumph for the Leecomptonites and the friends of Freedom. The bill will now go back to the Senate.

Prayer Meetings in England

A gentleman who takes a deep interest in the religious awakening of the times, which is spreading like a lamp, and with electric celerity throughout the land, states that a similar movement is now foot in England. Before it commenced, a number of berristors and other gifted laymen, went into the by ways and alleys of the great metropolis, resembled the poor, and even hundreds of persons of both sexes and of doubtful reputation, taught them the sublime truths and consolations of the Gospel, and induced them to unite in meetings for general and fervent prayer. Their ministrations were attended with such success that both St. Paul's Cathedral and Westminster Abbey were opened for services, and also for sermons that are especially intended for the evening attendance of the industrious as well as the idle and vagrant classes, while the gatherings at Exeter Hall are thronged by thousands, many of whom confess their previous neglect of religion and the Scriptures. Thus it will be seen that a similar enthusiasm has been kindled in the Old World, and there is every probability that it will take deep root, and be widely and beneficially diffused among the people of more than one European nation.

The Liquor Question has been up for consideration in the House branch of the State Legislature, but owing to so much diversity of opinion among those favorable to a change in the present law, the whole matter has been referred to a select committee, of which Mr. Goepp, of Northampton, is chairman. The committee has had a meeting, and agreed upon a bill for the country. This bill takes the present act as a basis, and removes some of its restrictive features. It requires the Courts to grant licenses without limits as to number, to all applicants who pay their license and give the security now required for the object of all laws regulating the liquor trade. The number of licenses to be granted is not within the discretion of the Court, as is the case under the present law, but the Court cannot refuse applicants with a view to restrict the number of licensed vendors of liquors, refusal must proceed from other causes, such, for instance, as the notorious bad character of the applicant, or the inadequacy of the security proposed to be given.

A Slight Demonstration

We learn from an eye witness, that a fracas occurred in Philadelphia, on Wednesday last, between Mr. Rice, of the Pennsylvania, and Mr. McGraw, the State Treasurer—the former Leecompton and the latter anti Leecompton. Rice struck McGraw a blow with his cane, whereupon the latter wrenched it from his hand, and, in turn, applied it to the back of the belligerent Leecomptonite. The Police interfered—not, however, until the parties had upset a port stand—and both were taken before an Alderman, who let them off on their good behavior, after a promise to pay the pecuniary value of the damage he had occasioned.

The troops for Utah—It is said that the regular troops in Kansas and on the Western frontier will start for Utah between the 20th of April and on the 10th of May, mustering in about 2,000 effective men. Five regiments of volunteers, proposed by the bill now before the Senate, will, it is said, be accepted and organized whenever the bill is passed. No force less than a complete regiment will be received from any State, but officers are already made, directly, or contingently, which cover the whole force authorized. They will be taken according to the date of application. One regiment is specially appropriated for Texas.

More Extra Pay

We regret to see that the present members of the Legislature are following the bad example that was set them at the last session, by voting in favor of the public treasury into their pockets, without either the expressed or implied consent of their constituents, to whom this money belongs. By reference to our report of the Legislative proceedings, it will be observed that the General Appropriation Bill has passed the House, with two extraordinary provisions, one of which gives to each member $200 extra compensation for the present session, and the other fixes the salary hereafter at $700 for the session. The only difference between this financial operation and that of last year, is that in the one case the Senate took the responsibility of originating it, and was self-sufficient enough to confine its benefits to a single session, whereas, in the one now before us, it was initiated in the House, and generously extended to the future. The excuse offered for taking extra pay last year, was the length of the session, which, owing to the consideration of the Appropriation Bill, the Bill for the sale of the Main Line, and other important business, was protracted one month beyond the usual period. Whether this excuse justified the act or not, we leave for others to determine, at all events it was sufficient to satisfy the conscience of a sufficient number of members to carry the extra pay through. But no such excuse can be pleaded this year, for the Legislature have already agreed to adjourn finally, on the 22d of April, thus making a session of one hundred and eight days—the same that it was in 1855, and about the usual length of ordinary sessions. The only reason, therefore, that the House can urge for claiming extra pay at present is that the salary of $600, fixed by the act of 1855 is insufficient. We will not undertake to decide whether $900 are too little, or $700 too much to compensate a member of the Legislature for the public service, but we will say that it is a very small sum, when the pay was last $3 a day—amounting to about $300 a session—as good men will find in the Legislature is any that have succeeded them, and we do not believe that a salary of $700 will secure it to the people better Representatives, than those who were willing to serve them for $600. Of the value of this kind is not usually sought or conferred for the pecuniary compensation it yields, but for higher and more worthy objects, but the question as to sufficiency of salary is a very, we submit to every right thinking citizen, whether our Legislature in voting themselves increased pay is often as three times within the last period, four years, and not excluding too many a diabolical and establishing a dangerous precedent? If these experiments in self appropriation of the public money, are allowed to pass untried and untried, what is to prevent their repetition every year or two, and upon a more extensive scale?

There is not a good reason to fear that members will be enticed by the examples of their predecessors, and emboldened by the success and apparent influence of the people, to go on raising their salaries, until they shall have reached a pitch of extravagance that will be fatal to the integrity of honest and economical government, which the founders of the Commonwealth have prominently in their minds is the chief safeguard of our democratic institutions.

The first investment by the company on the underwritten, President of the Gettysburg Iron and Steel Company, many of its Managers. Gettysburg Iron and Steel Company have been secured by a Mortgage on their property bearing interest at the rate of six per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, on the first days of February and August, to the extent of ten per cent of the principal, to be paid in ten years until due. They have sold some of the Bonds and met the interest falling due on them the latest, promptly, by setting up a fund for that purpose. The Bonds are selling at 110 per cent of their par value, thus the holder will realize seven and a half per cent interest per annum, payable every six months without fail; and a without doubt, make twenty five per cent on his investment in a year or two by the time he is able to pay.

The fact is now in operation as follows: New Orleans is bringing in a profitable share. It is in the business in that port, and it is confidently expected that the amount it is entitled to be paid for the interest on the Bonds issued, after deducting expenses. Subscription can be made in Bonds payable in installments.
